Hylan Campaign Plans Delay 5 More Schools

Relief Needed by Thousands of Pupils Held Up so Openings Can Be Held With Flourish on Election's Eve

Three Boroughs Affected

Contracts Called for Completion of These Buildings Several Months Ago

An examination of the official reports of the building bureau of the Board of Education shows that five other new schools in addition to the five described in yesterday's Tribune are being delayed in construction so that they can be opened on the eve of election and afford Mayor Hylan an opportunity to receive "ruffles and flourishes" during the gigantic public spectacle that will be staged for him when the new schools are opened.

In the mean time as a result of this sacrifice to politics, 14,000 school children are compelled to work in overcrowded classrooms and other children are being turned away from the schools because of lack of room. While the 12,000 new seats are being held up 105,000 elementary school children are on part time.

School Building Delayed

At Bronxgate Avenue and 182d Street, the new Public School 59, with a capacity of 1,507 pupils, is being constructed. This school is being recommended by the Board of School Superintendents on May 7, 1919, but the contract for it was not let until August 6, 1920. The contract called for completion on April 27, 1921. The school will be opened in November, just before election.

In Brooklyn the new Public School 181 is under construction at New York Avenue, near Tilden Avenue. It was first recommended by the Board of School Superintendents on December 11, 1918, and after a series of bickering again was recommended on July 17, 1919. The contract was let April 30, 1920, and it called for completion by March 25, 1921. The new school has a capacity for 1,297 pupils, but it will not be opened until November, just before Election Day.

The new Public School 185, in Brooklyn, is being built at Ridge Boulevard and Eighty-sixth Street, with a capacity for 1,449 children. It was approved by the Board of Education on August 6, 1919, but the contract was not let until July 12, 1920. The contract called for completion April 14, 1921, but the school will not be opened until November, just before Election Day.

More Pupils Must Wait

In the Borough of Queens a new school, No. 50, is under construction at Liberty, Bryant and Jerome avenues, 1380 pupils. It was first recommended by the Board of School Superintendents on July 17, 1919, but the contract was not let until June 1, 1920. The contract provided for completion on August 1, 1921, but the school will not be opened until November, just before Election Day.

An instance of the delay that has marked the Hylan administration with respect to the needs of the schools is illustrated in the case of the addition to Bryant High School, first provided for at the close of the Mitchell administration. The contract for this addition, which will complete the high school and add 477 new settings, was let on May 24, 1919, and called for completion on April 22, 1920, but the school is not yet completed.

The contractor failed, and because of the failure of the Hylan administration to make the surety companies parties to the contract, work on this important addition was suspended on May 13 last, until new contracts could be let. This addition will now be opened in November, just before Election Day.

"A Seat for Every Child"

How Mayor Hylan Has Failed in His Campaign Promise for the Public Schools of the City

A two-story red schoolhouse stands near the corner of Classon and St. Mark's avenues, Brooklyn, a monument to the indifference of the Hylan-Tammany administration. Built forty years ago, with a capacity of approximately five hundred seats, it is a fire trap and a distinct menace to the health of the unfortunate children compelled to use it, because of the failure of Mayor Hylan to construct a single high school during the three and a half years of his administration.

Condemned by both the Health and Fire departments, this ancient structure now blossoms forth as the Girls' Commercial High School. Within its aged and crumbling walls 1,876 girls are registered for instruction. So distressing are the conditions there that the authorities in charge of high school education have been compelled to take away from Bushwick High School the old P. S. 129, at Quincy Street, near Stuyvesant Avenue, and turn it over to relieve the conditions at Girls' Commercial High.

Before this drastic action was taken the girls were being actually taught while they were seated on the old wooden stairways and on the window sills in violation of fire regulations. Another measure of relief was afforded by turning over the top floor of P. S. 42 to the high school, to the consequent crowding of the elementary classes. The relief, however, does not remove the double session evil, and the entire school is now on double session basis.

The girls receive their physical training in a dark basement. There are no lockers inside the damp cellar, and the girls are compelled to undress and leave their clothes lying in heaps on a low bench. The drinking water supplied them bubbles out of insanitary fountains set in long troughs similar to those supplied for horses. The plumbing of the school is vile.

The conditions in this school are so terrible that Mayor Hylan's Board of Health was compelled to write to Mayor Hylan's Board of Education on March 28 last, as follows:

"The whitewashed walls and ceiling of the book storage room, which are filthy and unclean. The trough water closets in yard are filthy and unclean. There are insanitary drinking bubblers in the playground. All interior classrooms on second and third floors are not properly lighted by natural or artificial means. The painted walls and ceilings of easterly wing are in a state of decay, filthy and unclean. No restroom, lunch room and classrooms are provided for pupils attending the school. Outer clothing is hung on racks in water closet apartment on second floor."

Even this appeal from one of the Hylan departments failed to obtain action from the Hylan administration.

Jews Vanishing As a Race, Says Birth Expert

Intermarriage With Christians Completing Assimilation, Dr. Fishberg Tells the Eugenics Convention

Humanity Is Benefited

Native Americans Called Tallest of White Men; France's Plight Revealed

The development of a typical American stock as a result of three hundred years in the Western Hemisphere was discussed at the eugenics convention yesterday at the Museum of Natural History. The same session brought forth the information that the Jewish race was disappearing. Intermarriage of Christians with Jews was tending to wipe out the Jews, it was said, but the resulting strain was a benefit to white humanity, according to Dr. Maurice Fishberg.

"There is scarcely a Jewish family that has no Gentile connections," he said. "When we contemplate that the Jews constitute much less than one-fourth of one per cent of white humanity and then observe the enormous number of great and talented men and women among them, it is clear that fusion with them can only prove beneficial to the white humanity of any country."

Fusion of Races

"The Jews who have been in the United States for seventy-five years have left practically few descendants within the fold. It appears that they have been fused into and absorbed by the Christian population of this country through intermarriage. Otherwise 900 Jews who can trace their ancestry for over seventy-five years as citizens of the United States. The Spanish and Portuguese Jews who have been here since Colonial days have almost completely disappeared."

Dr. Fishberg explained the increase of intermarriage among Jews and Christians by the passing of the restrictions on the younger generations of Jews, so that social intermingling with Christians was more practicable.

In Germany since 1875, he said, 25 per cent of Jews have married Christians, in Prussia and Bavaria, 30 per cent, and in Scandinavian countries the proportion of Jews marrying outside the pale is larger than that marrying within the pale.

Developments of Traits

The gradual development of traits characteristic of the native American of old stock was outlined by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, of the United States National Museum at Washington, D. C.

Hrdlicka has made a study extending over eight years and involving up to 100,000 families of at least three generations native Americans.

"The typical American," as revealed by this study, is of more than moderate build, and with some exceptions of white men. He is of good proportion, with an oval face and largest subdued cheek bones and a rounded forehead. He is a tendency toward darkening skin, with light blond adults are rare, as are pure blacks and reds.

"The old American," he said, still far from presenting a uniform type, shows plainly advances toward such a type in physiognomy and various other directions, and with some exceptions among the women, who show development of the chest, may be characterized as one of the best and strongest of the existing strains of the white race."

Tragic Picture of France

A tragic picture of conditions in France, as a result of the war, was pictured by Dr. G. V. De Lapouge, of the University of Nancy, who declared that the death of the best young men of France left the nation without men of intellect to cope with the problems of the day and no promise of a coming generation of higher intellect.

The formal sessions of the convention closed yesterday, and to-day will be spent in visit to the laboratories of the experiments conducted at the eugenics record office at Cold Springs Harbor.

A permanent international eugenics commission was created yesterday, whose purpose will be to keep various national eugenics groups informed as to one another's progress and to plan the best international conventions. Major Leonard Darwin was elected chairman, Henry Fairfield Osborn, vice-chairman, Dr. Albert S. J. Huxley, secretary. The next convention will be in Europe, probably in three years from now.

No Change in Milk Prices

Borden's Won't Raise Despite Farmers Charge Cent More

Although the farmers have advanced the price of milk to the distributors one cent a quart for October, Patrick D. Fox, president of the Borden's Farm Products Company, announced yesterday that his firm's September price schedule would be retained for the next month. Grade B will remain at 15 cents a quart and Grade A at 18.

"We do not feel that we would be justified at this time in passing any increase on to the consumer," Mr. Fox declared. "We feel that we must make every effort to hold prices down. The consumer, therefore, as far as the Borden Farm Products Company is concerned, will not feel the advance of one cent a quart which the farmers have added to their price for October."
